World, dated Tuesday, says: "There was a striking test of the quality of American horsemanship as displayed at he Wild West in Hertfordshire last Saturday. Mr. F. C. Swindell, a wealthy country gentiemne, who is owner of a fine pack of hounds, is devoted to fox bunting. There was a large meet at his place on Saturday, which over one hundred gentlemen attended. There were also some twenty-five or thirty ladies present. Mr. Swindell invited Broncho Bill and Red Shirt to come down and take part in the hunt. These are two of the most famous riders at the Wild West Mr. Swindell wished to test the character of the American style of riding in a sharp brush across the most difficult country. Neither Bill nor Red Shirt had ever try. Neither Bill nor Red Shirt had ever ridden across English country before, and in all their riding had done very little jumping. They came to the meet and accepted mounts from Mr. Swindell. The horses fornished them were strange. The såddles and the bridles were English. Neither one of the American riders had ever been in an English saddle before. They examined the curb and light snaffle carefully before mounting. When both were seated in their saddles they immediately called out for the stiring. When both were seared in their said dles they immediately called out for the stirrups to be lengthened so that they could ride with straight legs. Red Shirt were his chief's dress. Broncho Bill had on his rough camp suit. The Englishmen were, of course, in full hunting nink. Mr. Swindelladdressed to full hunting pink. Mr. Swindeltsddressed Broncho Bill before setting out. He said: Broncho Bill before setting out. He said:

"There is hardly a man here but what believes you will come to grief. You are going to try a new kind of riding and I hope you will do your country credit!" Broncho Bill stock, such as has never before been in Alexandria, and from which I am able to give every says that he made up his mind that no Euglishman should get ahead of him in that hand if he broke his neck. The course run was ten miles. Bill and Red Shirt were furnished with two changes of horses in the run. The track was directly across a hard stretch of country. There were a great number of honges, stiff fences and directs Brancha Bill says that he had and ditches. Broncho Bill says that he had never jumped a feace before in his life. He declares that he felt very queer rising to the first one, but that after he had been over first one, but that ofter he had been over one or two he did not mind. At the first fence six of his English competitors went down, and from then on Red Shirt and Bill led the whole crowd. Red Shirt became wild with excitement. He yolled and dashed at the fences ablaze with excitement as if he were charging. The master of hounds nad to call out to them not to run down the hounds. They kept close to the talls of the dags until the fox escaped by a narrow stretch of sixty fact into his hole.

The number of suicides at the falls has been very large. On one occason a man leaped from the bridge, 192 feet, into the current, and is believed to have died before Oysters of the best quality received from Nor-fok daily and delivered in any part of the city. Orders from the country solicited. Great care over, and dropped apparently lifeless on the water. A woman who committed suicide tested the current by throwing in her para-sol before gathering her skirts together for the plunge. In another case a man calmly undressed and went into the flood, strongly and deliberately swimming to the giddy vorge. A brave swimmer tried to rescue nin, but the man who sought death sped onward to it with rapidity on seeing that he was followed. He was soon where it was not recessary for him to put forth another stroke. The current caught him, and he was at once beyond help. On one occasion there was a double suicide, the couple being a man and woman about whom there Before purchasing a Lautern call and examine the "PERFECTION SELF-LIGHTING LAN." Werry strange and foolish accident occurred. An engaged couple went behind the falls, into the Cave of the Winds, without a guide. The lady actually sought to bathe in a pool which even the guides never visited. Her lover lost his life in endeavoring to save hers. One very pathetic and dramatic incident is recorded. A young man caught up a charming child, who was watching the tumbling waves. "Now, Lizzie," he playfully said, "I am going to throw you into the water," and he swung her backwarks and forwards. The child screamed, atruggled, and slipped from his hands. He gazed after her, and, realizing what he had done, leaped into the torrent. Rescue, of course, was hopeless, and he perished.
